May it please Your Highness,

I have the honour to submit the Administration Report of the Sirohi State for the year ending 31 st October, 1939.

Your Highness'
most obedient servant,
I. K. Pandya,
Chief Minister, Sirohi State.

CHAPTER I.

GENERAL AND POLITICAL.

PHYSICAL ASPECTS.

As has been previously remarked this State has been called SITUATION. after its capital and the latter has taken its name from the Sarnua Hill, on the Western slope of which it stands

It is situated in the west of Rajputana between $24^{\circ}20''$ and $25^{\circ}17''$ North Latitude and $72^{\circ}16''$ and $73^{\circ}10''$ East Longitude and is bounded on the North, North East and West by Marwar, on the East by Mewar, Idar and Danta and on the South and South West by Palanpur. The extreme length from North to South is about 64 miles and the extreme breadth from East to West is about 50 miles.

The country though fairly open is mostly covered by hills and mountains, the chief of which is the well known Mount Abu, the highest peak of which (Gurushikhar) rises 5,650 ft. above sea level. Next to Mount Abu are the Aravalli Hills, between which and the Abu Sirohi range is the narrow valley through which runs the B. B. & C. I. Rly.

There is no perennial river in the State. The Western Banas, which is the only important river, flows during the greater part of the year. It takes its origin from the Sarnua Hills near Balda and Sonwara. It flows for 10 miles in a South Westerly direction as far as Jharoli (near Pindwara) and then turning South West continues its course for another 40 miles through the valley between Mount Abu and the Aravalli Hills until it enters Palanpur territory to lose itself ultimately in the Runn of Cutch. There are several other streams in the country but they run dry immediately after the rains have ceased.

HISTORY.

"Sirohi" as Colonel Malleon rightly remarks, "is the one domain in Rajputana which maintained its independence, acknowledging the suzerainty of neither Mogul, Rathor, nor Marhata." Claiming common descent from the heroes of the Mahabharat, the princely house of Sirohi is an offshoot of the same branch, Chauhan, to which the last Hindu Emperor of India belonged. Historic pride clings to masses as much as to individuals, conducting to honourable pride when rightly felt, and to none can it therefore cling more firmly than to 'the magnificently stubborn Deora', the particular sect of the Chauhans who have ruled over Sirohi during the past six centuries.

Lumbha was the founder of the Chauhan Deora rule on Abu, now known as the Sirohi Raj. In the time of Deoraj's immediate successors, the Chauhans were engaged in constant struggles with the Parmers, or Ponwars, (who held the greater part of the country now called Sirohi), and eventually vanquished them, capturing first Chandra-vati, in or about 1303 A. D., and subsequently Abu and Achalgadh. The present town of Sirohi was founded in 1425 by Rao Sains Mal, who extended his dominions by driving the Solankis from the tract known as Mal Magra in the north. The first relations between Sirohi and the British Government took place in 1823 A. D. when a treaty was concluded with the British Government.

His Highness Maharajadhiraj Maharao Shri Sir Sarup Ram Singhji Saheb Bahadur, G. C. I. E., K. C. S. I., was born on the 27th September 1888 A. D. and has attained his 51st year. TRANSFER OF RESIDENCY.

On September 1st Hitler brushing aside all attempts at peaceful negotiation set out to conquer and enslave yet another country—Poland, Great Britain thinking that Germany was trampling under foot all that civilised men care for social progress learning and culture, freedom of the human spirit took up the aggressor's challenge and declared war on the invaders.

Official information in that behalf was received from the Residency on 4th September. His Highness soon hastened to place all the resources of the State at the service of the Empire,

During the year Federal negotiations made considerable progress which was unhappily arrested by the sudden outbreak of war.

In January 1939 the Praja Mandal started its activities in the State. It disseminated its ideas and view points by holding meetings in all the important towns and villages throughout the State. This was not objected to so long as the activities remained wholesome.

In March and then in June with a view to check the subversive actions of undesirable strangers and to keep itself informed of the activities of all societies functioning within Sirohi territory the State brought into force two new enactments viz. The Sirohi Public Safety Act and the Sirohi Public Societies Act.
